This immersive short course focuses on multiple features of the leaf, from structure and development to physiology, as key to understanding how plants interact with their environment. Sponsored by the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University and New Phytologist Trust.

Accepting Applications from:
- advanced undergraduates
- graduate students
- postdocs

12 applicants are selected for this intensive course which includes daily lectures and lab sessions. No classes scheduled on weekend.

Instructors:
- Craig Brodersen (Yale University)
- Pamela Diggle (University of Connecticut)
- William Friedman (Harvard University)
- Noel M. Holbrook (Harvard University)
- Cynthia Jones (University of Connecticut)
- Fulton Rockwell (Harvard University)

Apply Online by March 15th
https://www.arboretum.harvard.edu/education/summer-short-course/

No Course Fees
Lodging and weekday meals provided. Funding available for participant travel.