Albert W. Bussewitz
(1912-1995)

In 1978, after his retirement from Massachusetts Audubon, he and his wife Flora moved to Jamaica Plain and both began a long association with the Arnold Arboretum. Known to all as "Buzzy" he was an extremely active Arboretum docent between 1981-1995 leading tours, delivering lectures, photographing birds and the landscape, and creating exhibits. The collection contains a small selection of some of his photographic work, photographs of Bussewitz in the field leading tours, and images of his 80th birthday party and his memorial service; both were held at the Arboretum.
